Accreditation Section of Website

As well as an up-to-date list of current accredited PSI undergraduate and postgraduate courses, guidelines and criteria for the accreditation of such courses are available in this section of the website. <https://www.psychologicalsociety.ie/accredited-courses>

Graduate membership confirms that one has completed a PSI accredited psychology undergraduate or conversion course, or overseas equivalent, and achieved a 2:2 honours or above. PSI Graduate membership does not confer eligibility to work as a psychologist, nor does it prohibit it. Some employers may require that you are a member of the PSI. You should check with employers with regards to requirements. All members of the PSI are responsible for ensuring they follow the PSI Code of Ethics in their practice in delivery of services and training, and ensuring they are competent in the area where they are offering training. The PSI encourages all practising psychologists to join the PSI and become Chartered Members. For information regarding becoming Chartered see here.

If you completed your qualification overseas and wish to work as a psychologist in the Irish public health service, you must have your qualification validated by the Department of Health Validation Unit. For more information, please contact the Validation Unit at validation_unit@health.gov.ie.

Best wishes
